Another Thanksgiving Day is history! Did you pause a minute and thank an all-wise Creator for the blessings you enjoy?

Union Thanksgiving services were held in Canal Point and Pahokee. Both services were well attended. I attended the one in Pahokee and thoroughly enjoyed the splendid program and the appropriate message by Rev. C. A. Moberg. My wife attended the service in Canal Point and reports an excellent program and an interesting message by Rev. E. S. Doherty of the Canal Point Methodist church. Beautiful Thanksgiving music was rendered at both services.

The war goes on! And, as it continues more boys from Canal Point and Pahokee are listed among the missing. No news has been heard from John Padgett or Herbert Geiger for many months. They were in the Philippines. Vann York, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hardin, was killed in the Philippines in February. The war broke out in Vann's whereabouts unknown to his parents.

Hoenkel, superintendent of Summer Properties at Port Mayaca, is a new recruit to the Everglades Land District Board. It was a wise choice. He was appointed to serve until June 15, 1943. Mr. Hoenkel will make a valuable member of the board. T. M. Bryan, of the firm of Dryden & Halloway, is another new member.

You'll notice we have now listed 232 names on the Pahokee Canal Point Service Men's Honor Roll in Pahokee. That's not all the names. Many of the names who have volunteered, will have their names listed just as soon as some relative turns them in. It's impossible for me to list all the names unless someone tells me about them. I'll appreciate it if you'll turn in any names you know should be on the board.

The Community Garden Club is going to help Mrs. Laura C. Chastain beautify the plot of ground on which the board stands. Mrs. Chastain has been ready to do the work for several weeks but to date I've been unable to get enough volunteers to haul in the necessary manure. Maybe we'll get it done some day.

Here's the prize being picked out of the season. Frank C. reports two colored pickers working on Monday of this week picked 70 hamper of second picking tomatoes at 50c per bushel. They started at eight in the morning and finished their job at 10:30. Not a bad day's work—$700 each.

The Pahokee Lions Devils will close their foot ball season next Friday night on Lair Field in Pahokee when they meet the Belle Glade Golden Rams in the final game of the season. The Devils defeated the Rams 25-0 in the first game of the season but next Friday's game will be a different story. The youthful Belle Glade gridlers have improved greatly since the first game of the year and they will probably beat the Devils to a much closer score.

Bean growers of the Lake Bore area have all made money on the fall deal. Although they had to pay high prices for picking they will have shown a nice profit on what they shipped north.

You can still get four gallons of gas on a 25¢ or 30¢ coupon. "A" coupons are worth only three gallons, according to officials of OPA.

The OPA asks that you write (in ink) your license number and date of registration on the back of each coupon in your book. This must be done before the filling station operator will take it. For instance, if you have a license in your book I've written (in ink) 0753-385 Fla. That's all there is to it.

Outdoor Tree Lighting Is Banned This Christmas

State Defense Council Asks Co-Operation In Banning Lights

Tallahassee, Nov. 26—Add to the casualties of war on the home front outdoor Christmas lighting that has been so colorful in many Florida cities during the past holiday seasons.

In conformity with national policy, the State Defense Council of Florida has asked city officials, civic clubs, business organizations and citizens generally observe the request of the War Production Defense Act to attempt outdoor electrical displays.

Major General Albert H. Blanding, of the State Defense Council, explained that the order does not apply to indoor Christmas lighting in homes or hotels but to flood-lighted tableaux, festooned streets, decorated streets and outdoor Christmas trees.

"From the standpoint of safety and fire hazard," he added, "the use of such candles would be little short of criminal carelessness."

Pahokee WSCS To Have Study Course

The Pahokee Methodist Woman's Society of Christian Service will present "On This Foundation" the Wednesday, Dec. 2, 3 p.m. meeting at home of Mrs. L. L. Stueky with study presentation by Mrs. R. B. York. Thursday, Dec. 3, 8 p.m. meeting at the home of Mrs. B. S. Waring with study presentation by Mrs. Dan Carpenter.

Lions Present Hutton Ring In Appreciation Of Scrap Record

At the Tuesday luncheon meeting of the Pahokee Lions Club President Rupert McKee presented Joe Hutton, Salvage committee chairman, with a Lions ring as an expression of the club's appreciation for the outstanding record which Mr. Hutton and members of his committee have made in the collection of scrap in this area.

BOARD SAVES MONEY

The state has been saved an estimated $228,000 through the efforts of the Florida State Board of Conservation during its first year of operation, against the expense of $75,000, it was revealed in a report made by the board.

All auxiliary police of the defense council have been issued 32-light night sticks.

Legion Group Hears Dist. Commander

Sam S. McCall of Palatka, district commander of the American Legion, visited the Legion group at Canal Point on a regular meeting in the Legion Hall Monday night. Commander McCall spoke to the members of the American Legion in taking in the War Effort. James O. Bell, National Recruiting Officer, also gave a brief talk. The two speakers were introduced by Lou Hone, post commander.

Cattle Survey Will Be Made

Orlando, Fla., Nov. 26—The United States Department of Agriculture plans a state-wide survey in December and January in an effort to reach an accurate estimate of production of the Florida cattle industry during the coming year.

Pending such a survey, W. F. Callender, statistical consultant for the department, said Monday, there is no accurate figure available on the state's production. He has just returned from conference in Washington regarding the survey.

Miss York To Wed Lietz, Beardsley

Miss York was graduated with honors from the University of Florida. She attended Florida Southern College in Lakeland for two years and was graduated with honors from Florida State College for Women in 1941. At college she was a member of Alpha Chi Omega and Phi Kappa Phi. For the past two years she has been home economics instructor in the Cleveland High School.

Henry M. Cranston, 82, Died Thursday

Henry M. Cranston, 82, died at 2 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 26 at the Everglades Memorial Hospital where he has been ill for several weeks. Mr. Cranston was a resident of the Everglades High School coming to this area from Massachusetts.

Truck Owners Given Respite

All Florida owners of commercial vehicles have until December 1 to apply for Certificates of Necessity for their trucks. The deadline date for making this action having been extended from October 1 to December 1 by the Florida USDA war board, announced last week.

Farmers To Get Plenty Motor Fuel

West Palm Beach, Fla., Nov. 26—Farmers were assured a sufficient supply of motor fuel in a notice received by the U. S. War Relocation Authority in Jacksonville, Tampa, Miami, Orlando, and Tallahassee.

Vann York Named Seaboard Ag. Agent

Vann York, of Pahokee, has been appointed assistant agricultural agent for the Seaboard Air Line Railway at West Palm Beach. Mr. York will have headquarters at Seaboard's new agricultural agent at Seaboard, Mr. York takes the place of J. H. Causey, former Seaboard assistant agricultural agent, who was called to military duty as a second lieutenant in the air corps. Mr. York is a native of Pahokee. He graduated from the University of Florida College of Agriculture in 1938, and is well informed in the production and marketing of fruits and vegetables. For the past several years he has been connected with farming operations on the lower east coast and in the Everglades.

Communication

Paul Hardin, Editor, Everglades News, Canal Point, Fla. Will you please publish this notice to patriotic women of Pahokee.

The Pahokee Red Cross sewing circle which has been open for several days at the new city hall building will close within 10 days from the date this notice appears unless there is more interest shown. It is my understanding in the past there has been some interest in the sewing circle. I am reluctant to let someone else use the room for a longer period than usual.

Each Child To Get Identification Tag

George L. Burr, Jr., Executive Director of the State Department of Education, announced today that a campaign has been organized through Florida's 131 county and local Defense Councils to provide all children, particularly children with tags by which they might be identified in event of enemy air raids or peacetime disasters. This program will be carried out in cooperation with the State Department of Education, parents and private citizens.

Circle Met At Ferguson Home

The Mabel Simmons Circle met at the home of Mrs. T. A. Ferguson Monday afternoon. Mrs. R. J. Simmons in charge of the devotionals which had as their theme, "For Temples For Thy Dwelling." For Temples For Thy Dwelling. The group voted to meet with the other circles of the WSCS on the second Monday in December and suspend the regular meeting on the fourth Monday of 1943.

Three Brothers Are Captains

P. Pierce, Nov. 26—(FNS)—The three sons of Capt. Robert H. Pierce are captains now in the Army. Dan, former Speaker of the House of Representatives, who is on duty at Camp Shelby, Miss., has been promoted to captain some time ago. Word was received this past week that Brian and John, both of whom are on duty at Fort Bragg, N. C., were promoted to captains recently.

Experiment On Ramie

Successful experiments in ramie growing at the State Prison Farm in Belle Glade, sponsored by Commissioner Nathan Mayo and Supt. Chapman, indicate that ramie is in an excellent position to provide textile manufacturers with a constant supply of high quality fiber. The old stocking machine of the St. John deercultivating machine now insures growers that the production of ramie is a sure thing from lack without injury has been overcome, and means a really market for all they can grow at profitable prices.

Mail Early To Assist Uncle Sam

The bulk of Christmas mail must be in the post offices by December 1 this year if deliveries on time are to be assured. Unprecedented wartime demands on the postal and transportation systems, plus a prospective record volume of Christmas mailings, were cited as necessitating earlier mailings than ever before.

HIT THE CEILING

Mrs. White: I have just been reading that in the Sarasota Islands a wife can be bought for $5. Isn't that dreadful?

Mr. White: Well, I suppose there are profiteers there just as in any other country.—Winter Haven Herald.

FLORIDA'S RARE TREE

Comparatively few Floridians know about the Florida yew tree, one of the rarest of the yew family. That is right, because it grows only in a very restricted territory, and in rather small numbers even there.

The Florida yew is one of the world's rarest trees. It is found only in the forests of a ten-mile strip of the Apalachicola river swamp.

Interest in the Florida yew is stimulated by a statement from the Florida Forest and Park Service that request has been received by the service from J. W. Besant, head of the department of agriculture in Ireland (and to most of us) for a shipment of seed of the Florida yew. Mr. Besant said they would be planted in a botanical garden in Dublin, Ireland's capital, in an effort to propagate the trees there because of its rarity. The request will be complied with.

The Natural History Magazine contains a list of the first 100 rare trees in the world. Florida yew is one of them, and there are two others native to Florida—the Turkey oak and the corkwood. Both of these, like Florida yew, are found only in the Apalachicola river area.—Bradenton Herald.

THE ISSUE IS LIBERTY

It does not matter so much about the poll tax any more than it mattered to most southerners about slavery. What does matter is whether we are to be let alone to work out our own problems or be constantly nagged, coerced and bullied by outsiders who are supercilious and patronizing air.

The South is abolishing the poll tax, slowly but surely. Florida is one of the southern states that has already abolished the poll tax as a qualification for voting. If alone the other southern states would follow suit in a few years. Pushed around by busybodies, as we have been on this and other issues, some of the states that have abolished the poll tax are likely to reinstate it just to prove they still have some independence left.

It would be absurd to suggest that Robert E. Lee, for example, who had freed all his slaves, came home to Virginia to fight for the continuance of slavery. Why then, for the poll tax? That was a dead issue as far as he, personally, was concerned and he and all southerners with good common sense knew it would soon be a dead issue with everyone, everywhere. What he fought for was liberty, was the right of his state to make its own decisions. And that is precisely the issue of the current filibuster.

It would be absurd for any Floridian to fight to uphold the poll tax if that were the issue. Why should we? That is a dead issue in our state. We have tried elections without the poll tax and have found no difference worth mentioning. Yet most Floridians will sympathize with the filibusterers because they feel, even though they do not put their reaction into words, that here again is the issue of liberty protected.—Tallahassee Democrat.

DEMOCRATIC TREATIES

The eloquent, forthright Democracy in the proposal of Representative Pat Cannon of Miami to give a majority of the House and of the Senate power to ratify treaties makes it worth favorable consideration.

Ratification now requires a two-thirds vote of the Senate with the House having no voice.

Senators are elected every six years while representatives must be re-elected by their constituents for approval of their official acts every two years if they seek reelection.

Under the existing provisions, then, actual control of treaties lies with a handful of men—something the Senate who may not be held accountable for their conduct for several years after they have taken a stand of sweeping international import.

Cannon's proposal makes possible a public expression within two years or less of the time of enactment. It is a long step in the direction of "open covenants openly arrived at." Its provision for a majority vote is sound because it voids the spectacle of a few thwarting the will of the many.

A constitutional amendment would be required to effect the Cannon proposal. It has the endorsement of several organizations which would see it enacted in time, if possible, to govern our post war international commitments.

Assuredly the end of the war will pose again the varying shades of opinion: we have come to cover, with the terms "isolationism," "anti-isolationism," the "policing the world," international cooperation, and similar doctrines, all of which are hinged with any interpretation of the provisions of the Atlantic Charter.

Cannon's proposal will go a long way toward causing many of the decisions to turn on the wishes of an informed people rather than an "inspired" or purposeful few.—Miami Herald.

STILL A FEAST

Our first wartime Thanksgiving finds the United States home front cooperating in a voluntary program to share the feast with our military forces and our allies through a reduction of civilian meat consumption by everyone.

Least there be those who forget, the American share of two and a half pounds of meat a week by each adult can be called a veritable feast in comparison with the puny rations forced upon the conquered peoples of Europe.

To make this comparison more clear, two and a half pounds is equivalent to forty ounces; and forty ounces is exactly eight times greater than the maximum of five ounces of meat a week allowed to adults in captive Belgium—providing, of course, that the already-starved Belgians can lay their hands on that much.

In Germany the maximum allowance is twelve and a half ounces a week, not necessarily of meat as we know it, but of whatever substance the looted countries can give up.

Italy gives us nearly as well—the adult Italian must get along on six ounces a week, and of that he must take one-fourth of the total in sausages.

Not all of us may be able to afford the noble turkey for this year's Thanksgiving fare, but at least we can let thankful that turkey and chicken and ducks and geese are still on the "free" list and be thankful, too, that we are not obliged to depend on Hitler's hand-outs.—Miami Herald.

SOLDIERS' NAMES

Running the ever long lists of names of men entering the fighting forces, many people must be surprised. To anyone who has grown up in the United States, the names are such an integral part of life. This is true especially in the industrial cities which draw their citizens so largely from Old World countries before the immigration laws were tightened. In many cases there are almost solid columns of names with which the older citizens are not familiar, and which they have no idea how to pronounce.

But if the names look and sound queer, the men do not. At least, this is true of the younger generation, nearly all of whom were born here and have grown up in typical American schools, and worked or played with the Smiths and Browns and Joneses as well as their own kind. They speak the same vernacular, and use the same slang, and usually the same terms for the older Americans they have grown up with. They have played the same games, lived the same lives, thought pretty much the same thoughts. And there must be more in common, environment and human association, than we usually think, for often even their own features seem to have turned "American."

Henry George said: We speak of Liberty as an ethic and a virtue, youth, knowledge, national strength and national independence as other things. But of all these, Liberty is the source, the mother, the necessary condition.—Sanford Herald.

GEOGRAPHICAL IDENTIFICATION

A gent, a little the worse for drink, stepped onto one of those traffic islands in West End London on a rather foggy night. Not sure of just what section of the West End he was in, he asked another man who was also waiting for the traffic to pass.

"Pardon me, could you tell me what island this is?"

"Yes," was the answer, "it's Great Britain."—American Exporter.

THE EVERGLADES NEWS, CANAL POINT, FLORIDA

to Seattle? It's been fifteen good minutes since I placed it. Good Lord, you ought to be able to get Timbuktu in less time than that!"

"I know it," said the frantic girl. "But I haven't been able to get Long Distance. What?"

In desperation the poor girl finally got the Telephone Company. "I've gotta have a line. I've just got to have one," she cried hysterically. "It's for Mr. Big and he's furious."

"I know, dearie," replied a patient weary voice, "but there is a war on and all our lines are busy. You'll just have to wait."

By this time Mr. Big is in the same frame of mind as a caged animal. He's got everybody from the junior to the chief clerk on the verge of a nervous break down.

But what about the line he wants to use and can't? If he could just listen in on it for a few minutes he'd forget all about his call to Seattle and he'd probably break the neck of anybody he caught trying to cut in on it.

The Army was sure that line and the conversation had to do with an immediate action decision to protect the lives of thousands of American troops en route to a certain destination. Every second counted.

But, unfortunately, Mr. Big couldn't listen in. But the Bell deal is important. He decides he'll hold a place and try to get through himself. So he had his secretary make a reservation for him on the next plane.

At the airport he is all smiles. He needs a little relaxation any how, and looks forward to enjoying his air journey. His baggage is weighed in and he is just about to board the plane when an Army truck rolls up.

A moment later an army official taps him on the shoulder. "I'm sorry sir," he says, "but we'll have to cancel your reservation on this ship to make room for a government shipment. Already several bulky packing boxes are being loaded on the plane and Mr. Big, along with several other passengers, finds he is 'all dressed up and no place to go.'"

"This is an outrage," he shouts. "I'm an American citizen. I've got my rights; you can't do this to me." But they did it to him, and here's why: At a certain desk-sharper port a huge convoy of war ships was waiting to sail. It wouldn't leave until a certain shipment of vital parts arrived. If shipped by freight it would take a week or more but by plane only a few hours. So they went by plane, and the convoy sailed. Every precaution supplied to a group of pre-paid Marines on a far away island.

But Mr. Big had no knowledge of this and he couldn't tell him, and so he is still gnawing about the duty debt the army paid him on him and how he'll make up for it. But it's really not his fault; he would have been the first to step up and knock the block off of anybody he caught trying to grab a seat on that plane and interfere with the shipment.

And so it goes. More and more, private citizens are going to encounter like situations. There will be things they can't get, things they can't do, increasing restrictions and inconveniences all for one sign to anything they ever encountered. But in most cases there is a reason. The extra cup of coffee you don't get, the plane you are sure you turned back, the phone call that was delayed, the plane seat you were denied—all are a part of your contribution toward winning the war.

On the Thursday set-up I'll have to choose "The Postman Didn't Ring." I'd say it's the show of the day, starring Richard Travis and Brenda Joyce with a swell supporting cast and excellent direction.

The Postman starts a wild sort of action, setting a whole town on its ear when Fate accidentally plays a trick on the mailman's bag. Heads are spinning. Hearts are skipping. Lives are topsy-turvy and Cupid's in the dog-house . . . and you'll be in stitches.

Roger Pryor and Virginia Vale romp through the next show on the bill, "South of Panama." This one has to do with pilots and super-plots—stinkers stalking around, bringing heart thumps to everyone and a bit of dipping romance which all adds up to a fairly entertaining picture, although it wouldn't bank too much on this one.

Well boy and gal members of the 36 Shooters Club, you can get out your ring, show right the set strips on your licks and canter down to the old Prince Coral Ballroom to welcome Tom Keene and his cowboys in "The Santa Bandup." I don't know too much about this one, but I'm sure it will be as good as the average "horror opera."

Tuesday will usher in a neat little comedy starring Don Ameche and Joan Bennett, with Billie Burke, Frank Cravat and Gene Dietrich, who all do a grand job of bringing through "Gai Trouble." Don't miss this one. It's a real treat.

The picture when his valet turns out to be Joan. She burns his toast, poisons his hat, kicks out his girl friends, and generally chases him with his household.

On the lighter side this show offers a plenty of laughter for the customers and a story that's not wholly new, but told in a novel manner that makes the picture outstanding.

Slated for Wednesday are two pictures that should entertain every type audience.

"I'll Make 'Sveter Girl' for the starter, because it is good enough to make a nice showing on a Sunday-morning bill. It stars Eddie Bracken, with June Preisner, Betty Bronson, Philip Terry, Freda Inescort, Nina Ayler, William Henry and Johnnie Johnston. It has a nice plot, fast moving story and a job of tinsel song numbers that should be satisfying the day after you sit through it. The "r u g cutters," "Zoot mitters" and "let 'em buzz" running in the groove along these lines will go for it I'm sure.

Frederic Foster and Brenda Joyce bring us "Little Tokyo, I. S. A." on this same program. It tells the story of the column behind the Fifth Column. Axis spawners tractors in a strange, sinister city within a city, right here in the U. S. A. It is brimming over with thrilling action and an adventurous scene follows another until you grow weary from the tension during its unrelenting. If you like stories of a heroism in battling the efforts of the Axis, striving to undermine other thrilling chapter on this program with some fine selections of short subjects.

"The Perils of Nyoka" offer an

Don't be too optimistic about the war—Keep on buying War Stamps and Bonds . . . See you at the Movies—Mal.

HERE'S THE War-Time TRAVEL PROBLEM

NORMAL PASSENGER EQUIPMENT

MINUS

CARS NEEDED TO MOVE TROOPS

LEAVES

FEWER CARS FOR CIVILIAN USE

Day in and day out thousands of the nation's armed forces must be moved—swiftly, safely and comfortably by train. This constantly requires large quantities of railroad passenger equipment. As a result, less passenger equipment than formerly, is now available for civilian use. That's the war-time travel problem in a nutshell.

Now You Can Help

In order to avoid overcrowding and make the best possible use of available equipment, your cooperation in observing these simple rules is essential.

1. Unless your trip is very urgent, avoid traveling weekends, on or just before and after holidays, when trains are likely to be most crowded. Leave these dates open for service men and essential travel that must be accommodated.

2. Make your reservation and use of available equipment in advance of your departure date. Your cooperation in observing these simple rules is essential.

3. Should your plans change, cancel reservations promptly, so that others can use the space.

4. Travel light—take only one piece of baggage into the car with you. Check the rest.

We of the Florida East Coast Railway deeply appreciate your patience and understanding when, due to the war effort, train delays do occur. We are doing our best to maintain standard standards of comfort and convenience.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

By Russell Roy

There are stories behind most of the inconveniences and hardships confronting the private citizen in war, stories which it "knows" and "feels" but which the government would have the citizen pay heed, according to what should be his own mind and would have them obeyed, a class which has a position of considerable importance in his field. All his dead things he has to pay his own way. He will not be told and the un-informed citizen, his feelings injured, how his head off, then, the President on down.

Consider the business executive desiring to give orders and having them obeyed, a class which has a position of considerable importance in his field. All his dead things he has to pay his own way. He will not be told and the un-informed citizen, his feelings injured, how his head off, then, the President on down.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Quite a discussion some of the boys were having down at Judge's place last night. Judge...you know, in the afternoon before the election of officers."

"Sure was...and Herb was dead wrong. The alcoholic beverage industry does account for more taxes than any other industry. I checked the figures in my office this morning. Why the figure on alcoholic beverages is pretty close to a billion and a half dollars a year. Lucky thing we haven't got prohibition or the government would have to make up the money some other way. And there's only one answer to that—more taxes. You know what that would add up to?...about $25 more taxes a year for every man and woman in the country. In other words you and Sue would have to pay about $50 more in some form of tax. I guess about the only ones who'd come out ahead on that deal would be the bootleggers and gangsters."

and Irene Vann. It was decided to meet regularly once a month with those attending Sunday school regular eligible for membership.

Following the meeting a women's road was enjoyed by all. Mrs. T. A. Ferguson and Mrs. Carl Annin.

Mrs. Denton Is Club Speaker

Members of the Pahokee Home Demonstration Club met at a meeting at the home of Mrs. O. H. McCune last Thursday night. Mrs. Denton was the featured speaker, giving a general program for the year which stressed "wartime activity of the family in developing skills in home food production, the use of textiles, the care, repair and conservation of all useful things and building health and morale."

Mrs. J. C. Mook, program chairman, introduced Mrs. V. C. Denton who spoke on "The Clothing and Textile Outlook for 1943."

Mrs. Denton also demonstrated some practical ideas in the making of Christmas gifts in the home.

Mrs. Edith V. Harris, county agent, gave a report on the recent Council meeting in West Palm Beach and announced that in the future there would be only two County-wide Council meetings held annually and the next one would be in the Glades area.

D. D. Caudill, president, urged members to assist in the work at the Red Cross sewing room which has reopened in the city hall. It was announced that the next meeting would be held at the home of Mrs. G. B. Ramey at which time Christmas gifts will be exchanged among members.

Mrs. W. J. Adams and Mrs. Sue Shiley were welcomed as new members.
